The Holy Father's Prayer Intention for July 2019

226

Evangelization: That those who administer justice may work with integrity, and that the injustice which prevails in the world may not have the last word.

Concern for the Migrants and the Refugees

01. Concern for the Migrants and the Refugees

This year the World Day of the Migrants and of the Refugees is observed on 29th September. In his message for the World Day of the Migrants and the Refugees, Pope Francis insists that the Migrants and the Refugees are to be welcomed, protected, promoted and helped so that they could live in their new places with safety, joy, peace and human dignity. The Pope warns that the marginalization and exclusion of the Migrants and the Refugees is an "alarm bell warning of the moral decline we will face if we continue to give ground of the throw away culture".

A) Migrants: Migration seems to be the living reality in the history of humankind. The children of Jacob went to Egypt as migrants, searching for food and better living conditions. There they became strangers and slaves and were oppressed very much by the local people. People migrate from one country to another country, from one place to another place in the same country for better educational facilities, employment opportunities, living conditions, for safety and security etc. Accordingly, there are migrant students, migrant workers, migrant business people etc. In the recent years we witness in our own country a big wave of migration taking place. People move from the rural areas to the urban areas, from the villages to the towns and cities for education, employment and better living conditions.

The migrant students should be provided with good, educational facilities. They should be helped acquire knowledge and wisdom, develop their skills and pick up the right value system. The migrant workers should be paid just wages and should be provided with safe working conditions. They should enjoy social security and legal protection. The Catholic migrant students and the catholic migrant workers should be given adequate pastoral care.

B) Refugees: The refugees form a special group among the migrants. Due to civil wars, violent attacks, conflicts, sociopolitical conditions, those who feel that there is no safety and security for their life and that there is a real threat to their life, flee from their own country and take shelter in another country. They are called refugees, because they seek refuge in another country. When there was a threat to the life of Jesus, St. Joseph was instructed to take the child with the mother and flee into Egypt. The Holy Family experienced the life of refugees in Egypt (cf. Mt. 2:13-15).

In the world scenario there are many instances where people flee from their own country and seek asylum in another country. Our country India has given asylum to the Refugees from Tibet, Burma and Srilanka. The refugees need to be welcomed as human persons, to be given protection and to be helped to lead a life with peace, joy, security and dignity. The children should be given educational facilities. The refugees should be considered for employment. The Catholic refugees should be given due pastoral care.

C) The Tamil Srilankan Refugees have been living in our country for about 35 years. At present there are about one lakh of them living in many camps in different parts of Tamilnadu. Each family is given a small house of 10X15 feet. Each person gets some amount as subsidy from the government. The living conditions and sanitary facilities are not quite satisfactory. The refugees struggle a lot to educate the children, to get good medical treatment and to find suitable jobs.

Message

In our Archdiocese the Tamil Srilankan Refugees are living in camps in Chinnasalem, Vridhachalam, Kurinjipadi, Mudaliarkuppam and Anichenkuppam etc. We concentrate in a special way on the education of the Tamil Srilankan Refugees children. In our educational institutions, they are given 50% and even 100% fees concessions. Hostel fees, half or full amounts, are paid by us to many of these children. These students are talented and hardworking. Some of the qualified persons are employed in our schools as teachers.

A good many of these families are catholics. A good pastoral care is given to them. They are made to feel one with the local parochial communities. Vocation to the priesthood and religious life have been promoted among them. Every year I regularly celebrate mass for them at Mudaliarkuppam camp and at Anichenkuppam camp. They have deep faith in God and tender devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary. They are known for their hardwork and sense of discipline.

D) Our attitudes, our dispositions and our responsibilities towards the migrants and the Refugees could be summed up in four verbs: welcome, protect, promote and integrate.

 \bigcirc We should welcome the Migrants and the Refugees as human persons, as members of the one human family. We should love them and respect them.

 $\textcircled{\sc blue}$ We should protect them from threat to their life and provide them with safety and security. Indifference and intolerance towards them, all kinds of injustice, discrimination, marginalization and exclusion against them should be avoided.

⇔ We should promote their personal, family and social welfare. The students should be provided with good education facilities. People should be given employment opportunities.

Get We should take efforts to integrate them into the main stream of life. They should not feel themselves as strangers and helpless anywhere and at anytime. They should be helped feel at home and live in peace and joy, with safety and security and with human dignity.

General Catholic Migrants and the Catholic Refugees should be provided with good pastoral care. They should be helped integrate themselves into the local parish communities.

When we welcome the migrants and the refugees, we welcome Christ himself. Whatever good we do to them, we do to Christ himself. "I was a stranger and you welcomed me" (Mt. 25:55). "As you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me" (Mt. 25:40). We should look at the Migrants and the Refugees with the eyes of Christ and love them with the heart of Christ.

Jesus, Mary and Joseph, you who fled into Egypt and experienced the life of Refugee, bless all the Migrants and Refugees in the world!

02. Fr. M. Jaya Prakash

As per the judicial sentence of the collegiate tribunal which I constituted to probe into the attempted civil marriage of Fr. M. Jaya Prakash (Can. 1394) I revoked the Decree, given on 14-11-2012, declaring the Latae Sententiae suspension. Thus, with effect from 10th June 2019. Fr. M. Jaya Prakash enjoys all our diocesan Faculties to exercise sacred ministries as per the 1983 code of Canon Law.

VOICE FROM METROPOLITAN MATRIMONIAL TRIBUNAL - 105

Relationship: Three Important Aspects

The most common human experience is learning to relate with one's parents, siblings and others. That relationship is unique, personal and complex is a great realization. Often we are not in control of a relationship, for it is a dyadic process. The most complex and compelling experience is the relationship with the opposite sex. I would like to share three important aspects connected to relationship: how does it start, the importance of the mindset, and the ways to evaluate the relationship.

A relationship starts with a need for someone in life. As social beings everyone needs to be with, to belong, love and be loved, share and care, be comfortable and relax, feel supported and sustained, enjoy and rejoice, feel the oneness with and journey with, and so on. It is for this need, people often spend an awful lot of time in choosing the right person, and to know and to evaluate whether the chosen person is the right one.

Most relationships begin in five ways, and the most common is the one-sided or mutual attraction, which may be a physical attraction, the way the other person appears and appeals, sexual attraction, which is ingrained in almost all relationships. Most relationships begin with a combination of both physical and sexual attraction. There is an element of sexuality in every normal relationship, and that would be a compelling factor in the process of carrying on the relationship. There could also be attractions based on skills and talents found in someone. There may also be attractions based on the emotional closeness or emotional dependency. There is the emotional need to relate to a particular person and to depend on that person. But very rarely there is spiritual attraction. Another way for a relationship to begin is when one is available. It is difficult to carry on when the person is not available for relationship. It also begins, when the relationship is acceptable to both of them. It also begins when there is a possibility to carry on for a sufficient period of time. Sometimes the relationship begins when one finds an interest in the other. The interest continues to increase and it leads to a mutual relationship. When two people have had any of these five different experiences, they would be sustained by a fif or a funny internal feeling towards each other. The starting of a relationship is an experience giving a powerful, personal, affective, stressful, transformative and wonderful event having most of the time this funny internal feeling.

Every relationship begins in a wonderful way, but after some time there is a drastic change. If a relationship has to continue, then a decision must be made, that is, a reason for having this person in a relationship. The reason is called the 'mindset' that is, with this person I would like to have this type of relationship. When the mindset is fixed, then the person begins the process of the relationship according to and depending on that mindset. The mindset determines, directs, guides, plans, programs, conditions, controls, proceeds towards the type of relationship one wants to have in the long run. We have many friends and certainly we relate with each of them differently, because the process of building a relationship depends on the mindset. Therefore, it is important to know the mindset of a person when one decides to build a relationship. This mindset may be a healthy one or an unhealthy one. With one, the mindset may be to 'care', with another to 'share', to 'protect', to relate as a 'friend' or as a brother or sister, with another as a 'guide'. We may also have the mindset to use, abuse, molest, hurt, harm, to have physical or sexual closeness, emotional manipulation for selfish reason or for unselfish reasons, to be possessive or to belong, to have a cheerful relationship or to have a sad relationship, or a spiritual relationship and so on. The 'mindset' is the underlying factor for proceeding with the relationship in a particular way for better or for worse.

All of us enter into various types of relationships, but is there a way of evaluating our relationship? Yes. There is a 'ten way test' to evaluate every relationship, whether it is between couples, parents and children, teachers and students, among friends, lovers, teammates, classmates, etc. The following is the ten way test.

1. Trust is the fundamental virtue: The foundation for any type of relationship is trust. If there is no trust it is better to end it or to rectify it. Most people would tend to ask three questions based on trust: Can I trust this person? Is this person trustworthy? Can I trust myself with this person? To trust is easy, to break the trust is easier, but to live the responsibility of trust is most difficult. To trust is a natural gift given to every person.

2. Love is the bonding virtue: Love brings two people close to each other with a unique bond. Human love is a combination of divine benevolence and the animal instinct of lust. Individuals experience, enjoy and express the bond depending on the love-lust proportion. Our selfanalysis is to find out what is the level or percentage or proportion of this combination of love-lust in our interaction with the other. Is love more than lust or lust more than love? Ordinarily, when love is more than lust then the interaction is loving and caring; but if lust is more than love then it would be physical or sexual in nature. Both are needed in our life and relationship, particularly for married couples both are essential for their relationship.

3. Respect is the mutual virtue: It is a difficult virtue to practice because when we come close to another the level of respect would tend to change. There are some important areas one must learn to respect: to respect the physical person; to respect the emotion of the other; to respect the thinking of the other; to respect the social background of your friend; and to respect the family of your friend. 'A friend is an extended member of the family'.

4. Honesty is the expected virtue: One is naturally expected to be honest in a relationship. Though it may be difficult, it is important to be honest about your personal life, your history, important events of your life. We cannot change our past, but it is possible to begin a new life with honesty. A dishonest relationship slowly breaks the bond of love and cracks the foundation of trust.

5. Security is the comforting virtue: The indication that one is deeply comfortable with another, is because of the feeling of security. The strength of a relationship depends on the personal experience of security in the presence and company of the other. The feeling of being protected is a sign of enjoying personal security.

- Innocent and nice people get hurt in life easily because they trust the wrong people... Be careful of your company.
- Sometimes when you are in a dark place you think you have been buried, but actually you have been planted.

- God changes caterpillars into butterflies, sand into pearls and coals into diamonds using time and pressure. He is working on you too.

- Don't limit your challenges, but challenge your limits.

One day Self Employment training program for Dalit Christians People Cell was organised in AR Hall, SAMSSS, Vikravandi on 15th June 2019. Totally Eighty members from different parishes participated in the training.

6. Belonging is an experiential virtue: As the relationship deepens, there is a personal experience of belonging to the other. There are different types and levels of belongingness. There is a serious difference between belonging and possessing. In a relationship one never possesses the other. There is sufficient room for freedom to be, to grow, to develop and to mature as a person, leading to a dependent or independent belonging.

7. Communication is the virtue to intimacy: The closeness, intimacy, sharing depends on the level and the type of communication. Communication is an everyday need in a relationship. Even the minimum of communication would help in saving troubled relationships. Part of evaluation is to find out what is the level of intimacy. There is a significant correlation between communication, intimacy and trust.

8. Commitment is the sustaining virtue: Commitment to each other would sustain a relationship. Commitment leads to knowing and supporting each other, and in fact to carry on any relationship they must experience, live and enjoy commitment to each other.

9. Humour is the renewing virtue: Whenever there is tension or disinterestedness or irritation or anything which makes the relationship uncomfortable, that is the time humour is needed to renew the relationship. Friends or couples who laugh, joke, are humorous and have fun together, certainly are more relaxed and would enjoy the presence and the company of the other.

10. Forgiveness is the divine or noble virtue: Human beings are weak and fail in one way or the another whenever we make mistakes, betray or experience unpleasant incidents in our life, we need to cement, rectify, rejuvenate, renew, or restart the relationship. To do so forgiveness is needed. Forgiveness is not a natural quality of human beings, but whenever we forgive it manifests the divine quality within us.

All these virtues are interconnected, interdependent, interrelated and inter-supportive of one another. All of them are necessary to have a good and a healthy relationship. The ten way test is one of the best ways to know clearly, analyze realistically and evaluate systematically our relationship, whether we are friends, companions or a couple. The relationship begins, the mindset controls, but the ten way test helps to evaluate it. (- Fr. Dr. Amritraj, op, the writer is a member of the Order of Preachers. 10 steps to prevent a heart attack remember saving ourselves from a heart attack

(the most common cause of death worldwide) is possible and it involves a few simple steps... almost like wearing a helmet and seatbelt and i list them below.

1. NO SMOKING- Do not smoke or use tobacco...if you do please stop today itself.

2. LOOK FOR AND CONTROL DIABETES- Check your Fasting Blood Sugar every year. Less than 100 is normal. More than 126 is diabetes and in-between its prediabets. If you have pre or diabetes avoid sugar and sweets, decrease your carbohydrate intake by half and maintain your blood sugar to less than 200mg all values and check your blood sugar using a glucometer at least monthly once. If you have diabetes meet a physician or endocrinologist.

LOOK FOR AND CONTROL HIGH BP-Check your Blood Pressure every year. Normal is less than 120/80 for any age and more than 140/90 is hypertension and you need medicines to control it. In between it is pre hypertension. If you have pre HT or HT get an automatic BP apparatus and check BP at least a month. Keep it below 140/90 always.

3. EXERCISE- at least 30 minutes daily. Walk as fast as you can when you exercise. Avoid sitting and lying down for prolonged periods (more than 10 min) during your waking hours.(not exercising daily for 30 minutes increases risk of heart attack similar to smoking 10 cigarette per day). If you have a smartphone use Google fit/Samsung health/Apple Health apps to count the number of steps per day. It should be 10,000 steps per day ideally and never less than 5000. If you do not believe in smartphones buy an activity band or smart watch.

4. LIMIT SALT- do not add salt to cooked food. Avoid regular intake of salt added snacks like mixture murukku namkeen pickle karuvadu and pappad. Ensure every member of the family takes not more than 5gm salt per day (How to do it.. if you are a family of 4 adults 5gmx4x30days = 600gm of salt to be weighed and put into a jar on 1st of every month and use only that till 30th...if you run out of salt before the last day you are eating excess salt)

5. EAT- Servings of Fresh Fruits and/or Uncooked Vegetables (salads) daily. One serving is what YOU can hold in your open palm. You can take it in any way you want. As a single shot or divided over the day. Not taking this quantity of them increase risk of heart attack. Diabetics-to keep the fruit part of the recommendation to a minimum to make sure their blood sugar is under control.

6. CHOLESTEROL- Check your fasting Lipid profile every year. Total cholesterol should be less than 200, LDL should be less than 130 (70 if diabetic or has IHD) and triglycerides less than 150.Meet a physician or cardiologist if the values are high. Plenty of confusion has been caused by messages in social media about cholesterol and its control. The truth is higher the blood cholesterol. Higher is your risk of heart attack there is no change in this fact. What has changed recently is that there is not much connection between diet and cholesterol as majority is produced within the body.

7. SLEEP - ideally 8 hrs and never less than 6 hrs per day. Sleep deprivation increases risk of heart attack

8. DE-STRESS - Stress is a part of our daily life and we need to develop our own techniques to control and manage it. Higher the stress levels higher the risk daily, exercise also will decrease stress.

9. BODY WEIGHT - Check your weight every month, and keep your Body Mass Index below 25 ugBMI of above 25 increase risk of heart attack, hypertension, diabetes.

10. ALCOHOL- avoid drinking alcohol as it can adversely affect most of the modifiable the risk factors of CVD.
